HELLO 2021 Cancelled!!

Due to the pandemic, many events in Germany and Europe have already been cancelled. Of course, our small, but fine EM world was and is also affected by it (e.g. KRAFTWERK for the Beethoven Year in Bonn)

We are also worried about your health, especially because of the sharp rise in infections here in the Ruhr area and in neighbouring countries. But we are not alone in this!

On Thursday the head of the planetarium, Professor Dr. Hüttemeister, called. She told us the plans for the expected reopening after the rebuilding on 15.12.2020.

<https://www.planetarium-bochum.de>

Status 10/22/2020, 4 pm:

Ms Hüttemeister is not at all sure whether she will be able to reopen to the public or stage live concerts after the official handover of the keys with the Lord Mayor on 15 December.

At the moment (Saturday, 24.10., 18 hrs) the incidence value here in Bochum is 116.34! Unfortunately this threatening tendency is always rising and not falling!

If the PlaBo can be opened at all after 15.12.2020, a total of only 50 people - including the planetarium crew and musicians - should be able to enter the dome! - So what to do?

So I immediately had a long phone conversation with Ron Boots. Because of the great danger we both agreed to cancel "HELLO 2021" under these circumstances, not only here but also in the Netherlands and Great Britain. As things stand today, Ian Boddy should not have left the UK anyway ...

I had the impression that Frau Hüttemeister was glad that Ron and I had made this decision. But she immediately informed me that the "Phase 3" concert next year could be made up for as soon as possible! But only CORONA knows when!

How this will be handled with the tickets that have already been ordered and paid for has not yet been finally clarified. The PlaBo employee responsible for this, Mr Mittring, will take care of it. We as schallwende e.V. have nothing to do with this directly.

But as soon as I get news about the modalities, I will inform you immediately!

Now in stock!!

Robert Fox - House of Chimes (cd)

Brand new studio album coming soon.....CD release date 20th November 2020.

The music of Robert Fox has undoubtedly changed over the years, from his early Vangelis style of symphonic electronic music through his darker soundtracks to his recent more laid back "New Age" offerings. What cannot be denied is Robert Fox's adherence to his own style, to his own personal musical 'vision'. Whether one buys into that or not, there can be no denying that Robert Fox retains a lofty position in the echelons of the UK electronic music scene because of both his longevity and the continued quality of his music.

Like his occasional musical collaborator, AD Music stablemate and Code Indigo cohort David Wright, Robert Fox remains a relevant force in the evolving musical scene because he has stayed true to his musical style and his personal musical beliefs.

'House of Chimes' is a brand new studio album, an album that Robert himself would probably tell you was something of a surprise, something he really wasn't expecting – wasn't his 2019 release 'Phoenix Rising' his swan song? And yet, here we are, deep into 2020 and Robert Fox still has something relevant to say!

Let us be clear...'House of Chimes' is a very deep, dare we say, "dark" album...it is not your usual Robert Fox fare. It's a far cry from 'Asfafa' or 'Blue Mountains'...it has a dark intensity which takes a few listens to get into. But, if you're prepared to give it a few listens you will discover a very rewarding experience.

The usual Robert Fox 'big chords' are in evidence, but for the most part everything is at a regal pace, unhurried and punctuated regularly with treated instrumental vocal refrains that are both thought provoking and evocative. The music drifts but it drifts with a purpose that becomes more apparent with each new listen.

A couple of tracks hark back to Code Indigo days, highlighting catchy percussive rhythms – the excellent 'Devil's Puzzle' (check out the video) and the catchy base line and accompaniment on 'Dark Mirror'.

This is an album that some may feel will resonate with the times, as epitomised by track 5 'Lockdown'. It is technically, probably, the best Robert Fox album to date with exceptionally high production values and we believe time will show as his most involving and most creative.

66927 Fang, Forrest - Book of Wanderers

The notes of a luminous piano trace a zigzagging appearance that runs in an iridescent breeze of sibylline colors. It's like hearing Philip Glass' repetitive piano. This opening seems to reflect on its future to finally undertake a modern dance choreography with a staging drawn from the echoes of the piano and its intoxicating notes which literally fly by alternating touches briskly. The flow is thus accentuated like in an avant-garde ballet. Bass pulsations second the pace of the piano which zigzags madly in the slow floating orchestrations. An Atom on a Long Chain carries its music admirably in relation to its title, when Forrest Fang undertakes a 3rd rhythm structure which slightly slows the pace in silky orchestrations. A very good title which undoubtedly initiates the most beautiful album of the Sino-American musician to date. When I really want to get off the hook, I often turn to the music of Forrest Fang. His predominantly acoustic ambient tribal style, the synths are weavers of atmospheres, has no equal in bringing us towards musical panoramas that we easily create on the paths of his sometimes convoluted music and sometimes turned towards progressive New Age. THE BOOK OF WANDERERS is a splendid album with strong moments of intensity which are comforted through peaceful ambient landscapes filled of wisdom. Like with Song of the Wanderer which is a great tribal ballad animated by gamelan percussions, creating a herd of bells supported by a piano with a subdued tone. Winds of mist surround the rhythm with an appearance of sunburnt silk. You hear voices that prove you are right and give an enigmatic lightness to Song of the Wanderer. Tale of the Egret makes the strings of an acoustic instrument murmur which unties the moods by creating an illusion of tribal celebration. Robert Rich's flute reigns over the first part of this title inviting for a spiritual trance while a zither bewitches our momentary submission in a stunning title which best explains the ambient tribal expression. Astir offers good melodious music with a union of piano to a flotilla of violins in order to make the trees of this forest crying with the colors and breaths of iron oxide. Atlantis lives in an intense sound broth. A moving decor to which are grafted different sound elements that surround the melody plucked by an acoustic guitar. Its panorama is made up of stringed instruments, orchestral layers, violins with waltzing wings, other breezes and the murmurs of the wood fairies. This circular aria draws a shadow, dancing in an aerial dive which is the enchanting heart of this intense fight between melody and its contrasting elements. Breezes of tranquility are thundering powerful tribal percussions, strongly supported by clicking of fires in an overheated ambience. In a very Vangelis ambience, Elephant Steps takes us out of this long phase of atmospheres with a crazy rhythm. Knocks and various clay percussions refuse any rhythmic coordination in this tribal trance where cries are heard. A wall of shouts, forging a choir with murderous rioting intensity. A title of incredible intensity that made my Totems tremble. Speaking of Vangelis, Chasing Stars is a superb electronic melody which intoxicates us with its carousel of moiré arpeggios which goes up and down under a sky lit by its thousands of stationary prisms. From the Hollows is a dark ambient track with a texture of grainy winds blowing on chimes abandoned in the deserts of the future. The title has a high content of melancholy that manages at times to lead us into sordid ambiances where musicians strum stringed instruments without succeeding in sticking something tangible. There is this piano... but it's far away and you can feel its disinterested pianist. I read somewhere that From the Hollows was composed for Brian Eno's birthday. It looks like him, but I find that there is a lot of life, material and texture to ignore the beauties hidden in this title. Water Pod is another cheerful and catchy short tune with a festive folk approach. There is some Sensitive Chaos in this title, but in more tribal pagan, and these nice intoxicating tinkles of Gamelan percussions and the zither. Kepler's Return ends this other brilliant Forrest Fang album with a dense atmospheric mosaic filled with drone buzzing. Our ears perceive the presence of this strange choir which has furnished the various walls with the textures of Dark Ambient scattered throughout THE BOOK OF WANDERERS. Built around the residue of chords stretched to the maximum and powdery and dark orchestrations, these walls are the fortresses of an album which offers all its possibilities in order to trap us! Why sulk his pleasure? Forrest Fang and his music are in a class of their own. Magical, mystical, ethnic and folkloric, THE BOOK OF WANDERERS 'music is a huge atmospheric canvas where it takes us through different stories that all display a high level of professionalism. A superb album, powerful, intense and without weaknesses where illusion and disillusion amazes and surprises.

SHIPPING:

Due to the fact that we use a special shipping service that provides the shipping of parcels etc we don't have to adjust the shipping prices at this moment. One of the reasons is that because of you our costumers we can keep these prices so low. With over 1500 parcels shipped last year we can stay in the lowest shipping prices!

I am glad we are one of the few suppliers of EM that did not have to raise their shipping prices. So for the 4rth year in a row they stay the same!!
